Office of the Mental Health Advocate

Agency Operations

The Office of the Mental Health Advocate is directed by statute to insure the legal, civil, and special rights of people with mental illness in Rhode Island. This includes providing legal representation at involuntary commitment proceedings, monitoring procedures and policies at in-patient treatment facilities and community-based mental health programs, proposing and evaluating legislation, and litigating civil rights and treatment rights disputes. The office also provides counsel to clients of the mental health system who bring complaints involving mental health issues and other issues vital to maintaining quality of life, such as housing and protection from creditors. The office is also charged to protect the treatment rights of criminally insane persons and prison inmates in the forensic hospital and to provide legal representation for indigent persons receiving in-patient substance abuse treatment. In 1982, the office was charged by statute to monitor the care of and protect the civil rights of residents of the 29 licensed mental health group homes in the State.

In 2002, the federal government enacted new confidentiality legislation, the Healthcare Information Privacy Protection Act (HIPPA). This office is responsible to protect the rights of patients under that new statute and is responsible to ensure that licensed mental health treatment providers comply with the law.
